The Ballway Pooling Bill-Mr. Wise in

Its Favor. WASHINGTON, December 7.—The was devoted to a continuation of scussion on the bill to so amend rstate commerce act as to perm micristate commerce act as to permit road companies to pool their earnings. resolution offered by Mr. Wilson moorad, of West Virginia, was pass-listributing the subjects of the Presi-te message among several appropri-committees. On this resolution the was briefly addressed by ex-sker Grow (Republican), of Pennayl-la, who presented his views in regard dependency to the national-bank act committee might act in determining the reasonableness of rates. His proposition was that the committee should allow profit upon the cost of reproduction of the road and rolling stock at present rates, regardless of the original cost of the road, regardless of the diditional expenditures, and regardless of the amount of capital stock issued, either real or fectitious. This wan the rule, he said, applied to all other business, and should be applied to railroad business.

The passage of the bill was further opposed by Ms. Northern 18 proposed to Ms.

oad business.

The passage of the bill was further oponed by Mr. Northway (Republican), of Ohio, and Mr. Wise, of Virginia, chadrman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, replied to Mr. Northway.
Referring to the Latter gentleman's remark that the passage of the bill was urged by the railroads alone, he said that it was advocated by boards of trade and transportation all over the country, and by every State railroad commissioner except one.

by every State railroad commissioner except one.

The discussion for the afternoon was concluded by Mr. Cockran, of New York, who advocated the bill as one which should be supported by every man who desired that the commercial conditions of the country should be such as to bring about commercial prosperity. If the railroad companies, he said, were denied what they asked in the pending bill they would seek the relief, he believed, in consolidation, as the telegraph companies had been consolidated.

In answer to a question by Mr. Cox (Democrat), of Tennessee, Mr. Cockran said he believed the passage of the bill would result in a reduction of rates, for the reason that it was the policy of railroad companies to constantly reduce charges. The railroads certainly did not seek to lay waste the country from which they derived their support. They sought those conditions which would give prosperity to the towns through which they pass.

And he did not believe that the intelligence of the House was so low as to prevent the passage of a beneficent, equitable measure upon the cry that the "railroads deserve it."

At 5 o'clock the House adjourned. The Senate was not in session to-day, having adjourned over until Monday.

CHARLESTON, S. C., December 7.—A. special to the News and Courier says that an attempt was made near Florence, S. C. last night to wreck the north-bound passenger-train on the Atlantic-Coast Line. A piece of timber fourteen feet long was laid on the track parallel with and between the rails. The engine and mail, baggage, and first-class cars passed over the obstruction, but the sleeper trucks caught the timber and dragged it for a mile, when the trucks of the sleeper were turned across the track, tearing it up for several hundred yards. The train was running sixty miles an hour, and had it left the track at this point it would have gone down a $5-foot embankment, and resulted in great loss of life. As it was, no special harm was done, Senator Hill, of New York, was aboard the train in a special car. Attempted A. C. L. Train-Wreck.

"None that I know of."

Recorder Smythe took the stand, and testified that he had not, since January. 1894, been compelled to adjourn his court because the District Attorney did not furnish business, and he thought that a sufficient number of judges to promptly try all cases; but when the grand jury brought in 1,100 indictments in one month cited during his examination, and asked Judge Van Hoesen, who was cross-examining him, "Am I on trial?"

"Oh, no," replied Judge Van Hoesen, "we are only charging Colonel Fellows. Now, do you know of any reason why policemen indicted for extortion in January, 1894, have not been brought to trial?"

"I don't know of any reason."

Mr. Unger replied that so indictinents of which 550 were for felonies and 257 for misdemeanors, were found. Mr. Unger said that on November 27th last, when the pending charges were filed, there were 1,361 indictments pending—801 felonies and 567 misdemeanors. Clerk Walsh, of the General Sessions was again put on the stand, and testified that from January 1st to December 1, 1894. 3,552 indictments for felonies were found and 442 for misdemeanors.

"Can you tell how many were disposed of?"

The witness replied: "Three hundred and sixty-nine were convicted of felonies, 65 of misdemeanors; 1,159 convicted of felonies by confession and 457 by confession of misdemeanor; 688 persons were discharged without trial in felonies upon bail, and 45 convicted of misdemeanors. The total number of indictments undisposed of, found between January 1st and December 1, 1894, is 3,119."

In response to cross-examination Mr.

Unger held a brief consultation, and then the District Attorney arose and replied to a short speech that Mr. Phillips made in closing to the effect that it had been their intention to call attention to the lack of public confidence in the present District Attorney, but that the Committee of Seventy's letter asking for a metee of Seventy's letter asking for a spe-cial prosecutor was sufficient evidence on that point.

Assistant-District-Attorney Vernon M. Davis was called as a witness for the defence. His testimony and that of Assistant-District-Attorney McIntyre, who followed, was a recital of the details of the methods of the District Attorney's office, and an expression of belief that it is impossible for the present criminal courts to dispose of all the business presented to them. They testified that there had been no unnecessary delay in the District Attorney's office in the trial of cases.

Murder and a Scandal.

CHICAGO, December 7.—A. D. Barnes, the jaintor of an apartment house in east Thirty-seventh street, was murdered some time last night, and his remains were hidden in a hole under the sidewalk on Park avenue, where they were found to-day. They were much mutilated. Circumstances go to show that he was murdered by his assistant, named Edmund Jordan.

The discovery developed a great scandal, and Jordan, his wife, and haif a dozen other persons are under arrest as principals, accomplices, or witnesses,

Killed for Beating His Wife.
LOUISVILLE, KY., December 7.—Tom Edginton, living near Springfield, Ky., was killed by White Caps shortly after midnight this morning. Two men wearing white vests and long cloaks forced an entry into his house. Edginton jumped out of bed, when one of the men grabbed him, while the other pulled a pistol and shot him. Death was instantaneous.
Edginton had been notified to stop beating his wife or he would be visited by White Caps.

possible to dispose of both classes of cases pending with the present force of the District Attorney's office and the present courts?"

"In my judgment, no."

Ex-Judge Van Höesen then cross-examined Judge Martine.

"Do you remember writing a letter in 1891 that the present judicial force of the Criminal Court was sufficient to transact the criminal business of the courts?"

"I believe I did write such a letter."

"Do you believe that, there has been

"Is it not so that fallure to bring ball cases to trial often results in loss of witnesses?"
"Often that happens,"
"There is no rule of law known to you that prevents the bringing to trial of ball cases if the District Attorney moves their trial, is there?"
"None that I know of."

In response to cross-examination Mr. Walsh said that there were hundreds of cases that passed through the District Attorney's office to the grand jury and never reached trial.

THE COLONEL'S MAJORITY.

The Colonel said that the 66,000 majority by which he was elected to his office, after he had already served one term, was sufficient evidence for him of the public confidence. He repudiated the statement that his concurrence in the Seventy's request was an admission of anything beyond a need for assistance in the disposition of an extraordinary quantity of business.

Assistant-District-Attorney Vernon M. Davis was called as a witness for the defence. His testimony and that of Assistant-District-Attorney MeIntyre, who followed, was a recital of the details of the methods of the District Attorney's coffice, and an expression of belief that it THE COLONEL'S MAJORITY.

The Commissioner said: "I think that you had bett r wait until I pass upon the facts, and then, if the Governor wants arguments, you can make them to him."

This was agreed to by both sides, and the Commissioner ordered the stenographer to furnish each side with copies by Wednesday. By consent of all concerned it was agreed that each side should furnish the Commissioner with their findings on Saturday of next week. The hearing was then declared at an end.
